BANGALOW MUSIC FESTIVAL

What is it that makes some music festivals work? The artists, the music, the location? Yes, all of these and a lot more. Because just throwing together these magical ingredients doesn't always work. It really needs electricity on stage.

I set to work to convince some of Australia's finest musicians that spending the weekend in Bangalow collaborating with my ensemble Southern Cross Soloists, and performing some of the absolute gems of the chamber music repertoire, would be just about the best thing they could ever do. I was overwhelmed by a resounding "Yes! count me in", from those I contacted in many far flung places. Consequently, my 'wish list' of musicians and music remains entirely as planned, such was the unbridled enthusiasm. For one weekend this year Bangalow is going to explode with brilliant music-making. You'll be stunned, overcome, breathless and screaming for more. The hall is small, there are a lot of people already who want to be with us, and the subscription price is very low, so please book soon or you'll have to wait another year. I look forward to meeting you at our very first, and never to be forgotten, Bangalow Music Festival. Music! Music! Music!

A Festival Coup

Stuart pianos, fully hand-crafted in Australia since 1995, have taken the musical world by storm. By special arrangement there will actually be a Stuart piano at the festival! A rare opportunity to hear this superlative instrument described as "the best piano sound you'll ever hear".

Double Bar

There'll be plenty of time for refreshments and meeting the musicians in a most informal way at the festival's Double Bar. Festival clubs always buzz with excitement and impromptu entertainments, and this one will too! Another exclusive for festival ticket holders.
