BANGALOW MUSIC FESTIVAL

Welcome to another brilliant Bangalow Music Festival.

Our first two Festivals have both been exhilarating experiences for myself, and all the musicians involved. And judging by the reaction we received in the weeks after both Festivals, (numerous very effusive letters and emails) we seem to have struck a chord with our audience as well.

I don't know what it is, but I always seem to be planning the next Festival as the current one is drawing to a close. My concept for this year's program was born while I was listening to the final performance of Bangalow 2003. While being transported by the memorable performance of the Chausson Concerto Opus 21, I was awe struck by the fact that Ilya Kononov was playing the 2003 Bangalow performance on the very violin that was used in the premiere performance of the piece! My thoughts wondered around the concepts of tradition...heritage...and lineage in music. By the final chords of the Chausson, I had already filled most of this year's programs in my head. And, I am delighted to say; this 2004 program is more or less as I planned it that memorable afternoon.

I have always been interested in how music has developed. For instance, the lineage of Wagner's music from Weber and Liszt...then moving to Mahler and Schoenberg... Australian music from Peter Sculthorpe to today's generation of Gerard Brophy and my brother Brett Dean...American music of Copland and Barber...French music of Debussy and Ravel.

I am proud of the programs we have planned for you, and immensely excited about being a part of the performances with the wonderful Australian cellist David Berlin, the mesmerising Tank Stream Quartet, my brother Brett Dean the fabulous violist and composer, the brilliant young Acacia Wind Quintet from Melbourne, the dynamic Match Percussion Duo from Sydney, and of course my wonderful colleagues and music soul mates in the Southern Cross Soloists.

As you probably know, seating is (genuinely) limited, so please book your subscription as soon as you can. I look forward to seeing you there – Bangalow 2004!

Exhibition at the Festival!

A Special Exhibition of a rare type of pattern-less Central Asian pile rug entitled THE BEARSKINS of OXIANA. Only recently attributed to the nomadic Arabian tribes who brought Islam to Buddhist Oxiana in the 8th century, this window on the archaic illuminates a new view of modern aesthetics: The cutting edge of textile connoisseur-ship.
